PROSPECTOR HAS VIVID "PAY" DREAMS

WEALTH INCREASES IN STRIKE
AS HE TRAVELS AWAY FROM HIS FIND.

Quite a number of authorities claim that "gold grows," and many mining men claim that the statement is a correct one, although there is a great diversity of opinion on this subject among those who claim to be posted on geological matters and the chemical and physical conditions which result in the deposition of the precious metals in veins and fissures. We leave this matter for their consideration, and the growth of the pay-streak—of veins and fissures. We leave this matter for their consideration, and will take up the consideration of the growth of the pay-streak—of the new found deposit of rich ore which, from a streak of from one to two inches, attains the magnificent size of two or four feet in a week, in a month, and always during the absence of its owner.

More than one instance can be cited in the west where a prospector in developing his claim, has uncovered a small seam of rich ore in its workings. Trembling with excitement he gathers picked samples from the new find and starts for the nearest town with his treasures. Before going a mile the pay-streak has widened from one to four inches (in his mind). By noon his little bonanza find has widened to six inches. He is fully satisfied that this is true. Arriving at his destination he shows his samples to his friends and tells them that the pay-streak is a foot in width. By morning he has two feet of this class and character of ore. His friends are enthusiastic over his find, which by night has gained in dimensions so that a yard stick would hardly take in its magnitude—to make a showing in the morning of four feet or more.

The prospector is happy and he firmly believes the story that he is telling. And some of his acquaintances believe him, and, to such an extent that they are willing to pay him a fancy figure for a share in his find. Finally the deal is consummated. The new co-owners, with provisions and supplies, leave for the scene of the new strike. On the way back the prospector begins to feel troubled. Suppose the vein is not quite so wide as he has stated, and, if this is the case, what will his friends say? Before reaching the mine he does not seem to feel as cheerful as when he set out, and he begins to lag behind the party; and, as the portal of the short tunnel is approached he feels a tugging at his throat. His knees feel shaky and he notices a pain in the region of his heart. His illusions have flown one by one and he knows that he is now face to face with the reality of cold facts. If he were 100 miles away he would feel much better, and he realizes fully the dreadful mistake he has made when his companions enter the tunnel and find that his four-foot vein of high-grade ore has dwindled down to one inch. Their wrath and fury is not abated in the least when he ventures the feeble explanation that he thought it was so.

As a matter of fact, the prospector was really honest in his beliefs. He was not a natural-born liar, and he had no real intention of deceiving his friends. His action was a natural one. The wish was the father of his thought, and it was as natural for him to exaggerate his possessions as it is for every mining man to pick out the very choicest specimen in his mine to show to his friends; and there are many who judge the value of a mine from picked specimens in their possession.

There is an overwhelming demand in this western country for good mines and prospects, but the demand exceeds the supply. Experts, in the employ of capitalists, of syndicates, are daily scouring the country for bonanzas—and many are found—but, in a majority of cases, upon careful and intelligent examination of reported new finds of fabulous wealth it is found that they exist only in the imagination of the hard-working but too enthusiastic prospector.

But we forgive him. It is his failing—a fault that creeps out in transactions in every line of business, in almost every industry. He is no more than human, and there is no doubt but that, in the end, he will give to the world a new source of wealth—a pay-streak that will grow until it has poured its millions into the channels of trade and commerce.—Salt Lake Mining Review.

Backache, Straining, Swelling, Etc.
Stops Pain in the Bladder, Kidneys and Back.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say good bye forever to the scalding dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of the urine; the forehead and the back-of-the-head-aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency? I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a quick recovery, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. GOMPERS PREDICTS GREAT PROSPERITY

President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor has sent out the following statements on the country's industrial prosperity:

"During the past few weeks I have held several conferences with representatives of national labor organizations, men representing the metal, mining, building and other diversified industries. In response to my questions of the state of trade, with but one exception, were that their trades were busy and employment of the workers general. That these statements were founded on facts is borne out by the increases in membership reported to the American Federation of Labor. Our increase has been over 200,000 since October 1, 1910. I look for greater activity in industry and the workers during the present year."

BIMETALLIC COMPANY'S ORE GIVES GOOD ASSAYS

Ore that assays $49.60 in gold and $20.76 in silver has been struck on ground owned by the Bi-metallic Mining company at Barrett Springs. R. S. Barlow, superintendent of the property, stated that the strike was made on virgin ground and is a new vein traversing the holdings. The find was made on the east side of the property and a good sized ledge is being uncovered.—Humboldt Star.

HUGH JENNINGS GOES UNDER THE KNIFE OF A SURGEON

MONROE, La., March 11.—A specialist yesterday performed an operation on Manager Hugh Jennings of the Detroit Americans, to remove a foreign growth in his ear. The growth affected Jennings' throat, according to a diagnosis of the specialist. His voice had been growing huskier and threatening to prevent his characteristic coaching.

A parson was loudly inveighing against certain schools. He finished by declaring that he was thankful he had never rubbed up against any one.

"Do I understand the brother to say that he thanks God for his ignorance?" asked the bishop.

"Well, yes, if you put it that way," he replied.

"Well, as I have to add," said the bishop, unctiously, "is that the brother has a great deal to be thankful for."

After the November election President Taft made a pilgrimage to the Gatun dam. Now that Mr. Barnes has been named chairman of the New York Republican committee, Colonel Roosevelt is going to dedicate the Arizona dam. It appears that these huge dams have excellent uses which were never contemplated by the engineers who designed them.
